Current Tables-of-Contents for more than 4,000 Biomedical Journals
Now Available on the Internet with the Knowledge Finder Search Engine

North Andover, MA, USA -- April 17, 2000. Aries Systems Corporation (North Andover, MA) has enhanced its Knowledge Finder search engine with a new Table-of-Contents service called tocs@kfinder.

Users of Knowledge Finder on the Internet are now able to browse a list of more than 4,000 biomedical journals and view current titles and abstracts. A user-friendly interface also allows the selection of prior volumes and issues going back as much as ten years.

Knowledge Finder subscribers can also select to receive current tables-of-contents by e-mail in text or HTML formats. This means that physicians and researchers can stay current with their favorite journals and are immediately notified of new articles by e-mail.

tocs@kfinder is automatically included with any Knowledge Finder subscription and can be evaluated for free by going to <http://www.kfinder.com> and registering for a "test drive".

Richard Wynne, Director of Sales and Marketing at Aries Systems Corporation, said, "tocs@kfinder is a great way to stay current with the journal literature. Users are given four options for connecting from abstracts to full content: a library holdings message, a KnowledgeWebLink directly to the full-content article on a journal's web page, traditional paper-based document delivery, and immediate PDF article delivery using our DocuRights® technology."
